SEIZED LIQUOR RETURNED BY LOCAL JURIST

Judge McPherson Orders Agents To Return Confiscated Liquors.

PHILADELPHIAN SHOWS PERMIT

A large quantity of "pre-war"
liquor, seized at the home of William Meenehan, Philadelphia cafe
proprietor, was ordered returned by a jury before Judge Donald P. Mc-Pherson, of Gettysburg, substituting
in Philadelphia, Monday.

Meenehan was before the court
to protest and show cause why the commonwealth should not condemn 96 pint bottles of red whiskey and 408 pint bottles of high-powered beer, confiscated in various rooms
of his residence when police, under command of Acting Inspector John J. Driscoll, on October 22, 1932, swooped down on his home.

Patrolman William Bergen testified he made a buy in Meenehan's cafe on October 27 and two days later returned with other officers and searched both cafe and the home. He said nothing was found in the former place, but located the liquor in various caches
in the home.

Assistant District Attorney John
A. Boyle brought out through this witness that thousands of gallons
of pre-prohibition liquors, cordials,
gin and assorted wines, valued at $50,000 and stored in the home,
were not touched, because, the officers said, Meenehan showed them
a government permit for them.

Shows Permit
Meenehan produced the permit,
dated December 7, 1920, to transport liquors from his place of business to his home. For many years prior to prohibition he had been engaged in the liquor business. He further averred that it had cost him $9,000
to transport the valuable "stuff," as he called it, to his home.

He admitted, however, that he told the officers he did not have a permit for the beverages they seized.

Prosecutor Boyle told the jury he didn't think the commonwealth had connected Meenehan with the purchase of liquor by the police in the cafe, and they were concerned only
with the possession of the liquor confiscated in the home. He told them if they believed, as was contended, that the liquor was part of the "old stock kept for personal use and to treat his friends with"
they should order it returned.

The jurors without leaving the jurybox found Meenehan was entitled to the return of the liquor.

According to the city chemist's
analysis, the liquor contained a high alcoholic content and apparently was "real stuff."

Mrs. F. H. Gitt Dies On Monday

Mrs. Fannie H. Gitt, 74, widow of Alexander Gitt, died Monday from a complication of diseases at the home of her son-in-law and daugh-

Annual Y.W.C.A. Meeting To Be Held Thursday

Eight members will be elected to the advisory board of the Y. W. C.
A. at the annual membership business meeting of the county wide organization, Thursday evening, at 7:30 o'clock in the Y. W. C. A. home, center square. Mrs. R. S. Saby, as president, will preside.

Election of members to the board
was done by mail ballots addressed
to members during recent weeks.
The ballots will be tabulated at Thursday evening's session. The reorganization of the board will take place in the early future.

A large crowd is expected to be in attendance for the annual business session.

The Rev. Herbert P. Beam, pastor
of the Gettysburg Methodist church, will speak on "The Y. W. C. A. in Our Community." Mrs. C. P. Sanders will lead the devotionals and Miss Florence Stewart will have charge of the special musical program to be rendered.

BURY MAN WHO DIED IN AUTO

Charles S. Wurts, Who Collapsed Driving Near Here, Buried Monday.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at the Protestant Episcopal church of St. Luke and Epiphany, Philadelphia, where he was a vestryman for many years, for Charles Stewart Wurts, 64, head of C. S. Wurts and company, Philadelphia brokers, who died at the wheel of his automobile
on the Lincoln highway, six miles east of here last Friday afternoon.

After being fatally stricken by a heart attack, Mr. Wurts lost control of the sedan he was driving and
the car left the highway and crashed into an electric light pole.

Mrs. Wurts, who was with her husband, suffered contusions on her legs. Mrs. Wurts was a daughter of the late John Wister, Duncannon
ironmaster, and is a cousin of Mrs.
Henderson Gilbert, of Harrisburg.
Mr. Wurts was graduated from Princeton and was a member of the Union League and other prominent clubs in Philadelphia.

the possibility of some amendments
being included.

Bride Is Talented Har- risburg Girl; Will Reside In Hotel Gettysburg.

Henry M. Scharf, vice president and general manager of the Hotel Gettysburg, and Miss Marion Strouse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Strouse, 1632 North Second street,
Harrisburg, were married Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock in York by the Rev. Dr. J. Lower Grimm, pastor of the Otterbein United Brethren church, of Spry, near York. The ring ceremony was used.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Grimm,
of Gettysburg, were the attendants
and only witnesses.

Mrs. Scharf, who is a graduate of the Scoville school in New York,
Irving college, and the American conservatory of music, in Fontain-bleau, France, is active in musical circles in Harrisburg. She is a member of the Wednesday club, the civic opera association, and took the leading feminine role in the Harrisburg community theater's recent production of "Burlesque." She has sung in a number of the civic operas and played the leading feminine role in "Mlle. Modiste" and
"Hansel and Gretel."

Mr. Scharf, a prominent hotel man in the east, is vice president of the Pennsylvania Hotel Men's association, chairman of both the legislative and membership committees of that organization and is a past president of the Pennsylvania Hotel Greeters of America. He is now treasurer of the latter organization and is a member of the executive committee of the Capitol Tour association. Mr. Scharf is president of the Gettysburg motor club of the American automobile association and is vice president of the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce. He is a Mason and a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity of Gettysburg college.

After April 1 Mr. and Mrs. Scharf will be at home at the Hotel Gettysburg.

NEGRO ATTACKS FORMER LOCAL MAN IN FIGHT

Harrison Runkle, 24,
In Hospital With Possible Fracture
Of Skull.

BEATING RESULT OF AN ARGUMENT

Washington, March 14.—Because he shouted at the colored driver of an automobile which nearly struck him, Harrison Runkle, 24, formerly of Gettysburg and Biglerville, was severely beaten and today is under treatment for a possible skull fracture, according to police here.

The incident occurred Saturday
at Second and C streets.
Runkle is said to have become confused in trying to avoid a car proceeding along C street. As he wavered, the machine was forced to stop. Runkle said he shouted at the driver, who got out and knocked him down. The back of his head hit the pavement.

At Emergency hospital, where he was taken by the fire rescue squad,
physicians said his condition was serious. Two colored men were arrested by first precinct police and held for questioning. One was arrested after police had traced the vehicle through a tag number furnished by a witness. The other man later was arrested when he walked into No. 1 police station to inquire about the first, who is said
to answer the description of Runkle's assailant.

Charles Currens Is Improving

According to word received from the Pinehurst institution of learning, Philadelphia, the condition of Charles Currens, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Currens, Orntanna R. 1, who was seriously ill with spinal meningitis, is improved. Eighteen hundred children in the school are under quarantine as a result of the outbreak of the disease.

SOCIETY MEETS TONIGHT

The young people's society of the Presbyterian church will hold a business meeting at the church this evening at 8 o'clock. All officers and members are urged to be present. Refreshments will be served.

75 EXHIBITS EXPECTED AT LOCAL DISPLAY

More than 75 quilts, coverlets, shawls and rugs have been promised
for the two-day exhibition of old and modern handwork at the Presbyterian church, Wednesday and Thursday, Miss Ella Gilliland, a member of the committee, announced today.

The exhibition will be open both days from 2 p. m. to 10 p. m. Tea will be served both days.

Residents of Gettysburg, Adams
county, Hanover, Keymar and elsewhere have promised pieces for the exhibition.

The display is being sponsored by Circle 9 of the church in an effort
to raise money for the building fund.
A nominal admission price will be charged.

HIGH POINTS OF SCHOOL CODE ARE CITED BY RULE

State Superintendent Of Public Instruction Summarizes Legislation.

POWER TO KEEP SCHOOLS OPEN

In summarizing new school legislation presented in the house last week, Dr. James N. Rule, superintendent of public instruction, addressing public school officials of the state, expressed appreciation for cooperation by newspapers in giving the public general information concerning the proposed school code.

"Major credit," he said, "for the development of an informal and general opinion on these important matters affecting the public schools
of the commonwealth must go to the newspapers of the state which
in recent weeks have given generously of their news and editorial columns."

Keep Schools Open

Telling of the new bills now before the legislature, the state superintendent said one of the main features includes the granting of emergency powers to the state council of education for the coming
two-year period so as to help school districts keep their schools open.
This proposal provides for permissive reductions in teachers' salaries
and would give school boards opportunity to petition the state council to relax any other mandatory provision that may be necessary to maintain schools in session. A second provision calls for merging to school districts with less than 1,000
population through action of present directors, effective in 1935. Doctor Rule also stands for maintenance of state appropriations to school districts which will enable them to keep their schools open
during the next biennium.

The larger unit plan now pending
is in keeping with recommendations
of the special committee of the state education study commission, submitted last November at the education congress after almost two years
of cooperative study with county
superintendents, school directors,
and other interested persons and agencies. It supplants the plan contained in the proposed school
code, and does not change the present law relative to classification of school districts, for all districts under 5,000 population would remain
as districts of the fourth class.

Larger State Aid
"Creation of these larger units
during the next two years is vitally

4 MOTORISTS ARE ARRESTED

One Charged With Overload;
Two Fined For Not Having Driver's License.

Three Adams county motorists
and one from York were arrested
by Corporal Stroh, of the local substation of the state highway motor patrol, for alleged violations of the state motor code.

Walter Ferree, York, was arrested
on the Lincoln highway, one mile west of here, charged with driving an over-loaded truck. The truck had a load of coal 2,750 pounds over the legal limit. An information
against the driver was laid before Justice of the Peace Neil W. Gibson.

Howard Oyler, Gettysburg, and James Kump, Orntanna, were arrested for not having 1933 operators' licenses. Both were taken before Justice of the Peace Gibson
where they paid fines of $10 each
and costs of $2.25 each.

C. A. Robertson, New Oxford, was arrested, Monday evening, for failing to secure a title for an automobile he purchased last fall.
Arraigned before Justice of the Peace W. D. Myers, New Oxford, Robertson paid a fine of $25 and costs.

Collapses At Church Service

Overcome by pain from mastoids
in St. Joseph's Catholic church, Emmitsburg, Sunday evening, William Kennedy, 23, of Massachusetts, was given treatment by Dr. W. R. Cadie, Emmitsburg, and on Monday was placed on a bus for Pittsburgh.

Kennedy told a story that he was en route to Hanover to visit his father and to receive treatment for the mastoids. Emmitsburg authorities conducted an investigation, and found Kennedy's father unknown
in Hanover.

The man was given lodging in Emmitsburg, Sunday night, and on Monday, he was placed on a bus for Pittsburgh where a sister resides.

Chronister, In Carlisle Jail, Sought Here.

C. A. Cole, proprietor of the Biglerville hotel; Clifford Naugle, Gettysburg, a clerk at Minter's store,
Baltimore street, and a Mr. Gleim,
of Goodyear, identified Raymond C.
Chronister, 29, of Harrisburg, being held at Carlisle on a charge of larceny by baille.

Cole identified Chronister, alias George McDonnell, as the man who failed to pay a hotel bill of $20.

Naugle identified Chronister as the "Lloyd Witmer," who gave Min-ter a worthless check for $18.50 in payment for half a month's rent for an apartment, and received $8.50 in change.

Gleim, a coal dealer, identified Chronister under another alias, as
the man who purchased some coal,
giving a worthless check in payment
and receiving $8 in change.

Both Cole and Minter have laid information before Justice of the Peace Neil W. Gibson against Chronister, and detainees have been lodged with the Cumberland county authorities.

Two detainees against Chronis-
ter have also been lodged by Dauphin county authorities.

LOCAL BANKS MAY REOPEN ON WEDNESDAY

Secretary Of Treasury
Woodin Says Deposits Are Exceeding Withdrawals.

"ERA OF FEAR" IS NOW HISTORY

Gettysburg and Adams county banks will resume normal operations on Wednesday if plans of the federal treasury department and the federal reserve system materialize.

Announcements on Saturday and Monday from Washington were to the effect that one class of banks
would open on Monday; banks in cities where clearing houses are located on Tuesday and other banks
on Wednesday and Thursday.

Official advices from Washington
today gave no indication that this plan had been changed or revised
and it was confidently expected
that Gettysburg and Adams county banks would resume normal operations either Wednesday or Thursday.

DEPOSITS EXCEED WITHDRAWALS

Washington, March 14 (AP)—
Secretary Woodin said today bank deposits were exceeding withdrawals generally in cities where banks
reopened and that "the era of fear"
was completely passed. He made this statement after reports had come to the federal reserve board
of progress toward opening hundreds
of banks in the country today.

At about the same time the senate
banking committee was approving
the Robinson bill to allow state banks to borrow from the federal reserve but with the understanding that the measure was not to be pressed if it were found that present laws met the needs.

Referring in his talk with newspapermen to the fact that the banks
had started reopening on March 13
Woodin said:

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Baugher had as guests Sunday at their home at Aspers their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Bream, of Chambersburg, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Shenk, of Dillsburg.

The revival services which the Rev. Harry Barnes has been conducting in the Heidersburg United Brethren church will continue until further announcement.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard S. Spangler, of Biglerville, returned Sunday evening from an extended visit in Florida.

Included in a group from the community who attended the mid-year council of the United Brethren church, held in Hagerstown Friday and Saturday, were the Rev. Harry Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. Zeal Peters, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Pittenturf, Mrs. J. A. Dentler, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hoffman and family, Jacob Paxton and H. E. Slaybaugh.

Mr. and Mrs. Spence Strausbaugh entertained the following at their home at Guernsey on Sunday: Mr. and Mrs. Morris Plantz and family, of Enola; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Ziegler, Mr. and Mrs. William Wolff, Mrs. Samuel Stump and Mrs. Lloyd Stump and family, of York, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Riley, of Hanover. Mrs. Lloyd Stump, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Strausbaugh, is remaining with her children for a longer visit with her parents.

The Philharmonic club, of Arendtsville, met Monday evening with Miss Helen Skinner, Arendtsville. Miss Skinner, who was in charge of the program, gave a short history of the life and works of Beethoven, interspersing her remarks with piano selections from that composer's works.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Knouse entertained at cards recently at their home in Arendtsville. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Blake Rice, Arendtsville; Mr. and Mrs. Homer Barnes and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Shealer, of Two Taverns; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shaffer and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Osborne and son, Junior, of Biglerville.

The postoffice committee, submitted favorable reports on the four nominations and obtained unanimous consent for their immediate confirmation.

The four all were approved without debate and without objections. A favorable report on the nomination of John H. Holliday, of Missouri, to be vice governor of the Philippine islands was submitted to the senate Monday by the territories committee.

DRAFT PLANS
FOR B. B. LOOP

County Firemen's League To Schedule Split-season With Series In Fall.

Further plans and organization of the Adams county firemen's league were made Monday night at a meeting of representatives of the teams in the fire engine house.

Teams represented at the meeting were Arendtsville, Bendersville, Cashtown, New Oxford, McSherrystown and Gettysburg. Representatives of Fairfield and Centennial were absent.

Roger Britcher, New Oxford, presided in the absence of President Ira Plank. Approximately twenty-five persons were present.

A ruling was made barring all players from league games who have participated in professional baseball. A committee composed of J. Warren Martin, Fairfield; Hugh McIlhenny, Gettysburg, and F. Colgan, McSherrystown, was appointed to draw up a league schedule.

It was decided to have the league open Saturday, May 6, and close Saturday, September 2. Games will be played on Saturdays and holidays. It was also decided to play a split season with the winner of the first half meeting the winner of the second half in a three-game series. The first game of this series will be played at Biglerville as a part of the annual county firemen's convention which will be held in the upper county town this fall.

Another meeting has been called to be held in the local fire engine house, Monday, March 27.

HOUSE TO PASS
BEER BILL TODAY

Speaker Rainey Says Measure Has Enough Votes For Passage At 4 P. M.

Washington, March 14 (AP)—Speaker Rainey told newspapermen today the beer bill would be passed by the house before adjournment tonight.

Senate leaders likewise planned to expedite the legislation requested Monday by President Roosevelt, the capital expectations appearing to be that the bill would be ready for his signature at least before the week is out.

"We've got the vote," Rainey said, explaining that he meant the democratic leadership could muster a two-thirds house majority to pass the bill under a suspension of rules.

House leaders sought an agreement for a three hours debate with a final vote hoped for around 4 o'clock.

Asked whether the bill before the ways and means committee met the approval of Mr. Roosevelt Rainey said:

"It meets white house approval."

Meanwhile Chairman Ashurst, of the senate judiciary committee, said he was ready to listen to arguments for constitutionality of 3.2 per cent beer.

"I have no doubt whatever that 3.02 per cent beer is permissible under the constitution," Ashurst told reporters. "Indeed I think I could say 3.05 is permissible. As to a 3.2 per cent bill we will have to consider it."

Wallace W. Emmons, former police officer in Gettysburg, is conducting a billiard parlor in Johnson City, New York, according to word received by friends here. Emmons, who has been located in Johnson City for two and a half years, moved to a larger location this week.

He also conducts a billiard supply house in Johnson City. Emmons left Gettysburg more than seven years ago.

Nazis In Berlin
Beat 2 Americans

Berlin, March 14 (AP)—Two Americans were the victims of assaults Saturday.

Julian Fuhs, a New York musician, was beaten by men in Nazi uniforms who demanded money. A storm troop leader interfered, giving an alarm to police.

Herman Roseman, of Brooklyn, a medical student in Berlin university, was attacked coming out of a department with a package. He showed his passport, but a policeman refused to intervene. At the police station, police told him they could not interfere with the Nazis.

Both Fuhs and Roseman made affidavits at the American consulate.

U. S. IN LEAGUE
SINO-JAP ROW

Uncle Sam Accepts Bid To Work With Advisory Group On Orient Action.

Washington, March 14 (AP)—America under President Roosevelt was pledged Monday night to work with the League of Nations committee charged with deciding what to do next about Japan's military operations in China's northern provinces.

Invited to cooperate with the league's advisory committee of twenty-one nations mapping a course for future action, the United States has accepted. The text of the invitation and reply will be made public.

The momentous declaration of policy by the new government marked a day in which foreign affairs bulked large. The administration decided to send Norman H. Davis, diplomatic trouble-shooter extraordinary, abroad without delay in the hope of turning the world toward peace through disarmament at a time when military activity is seething on three continents.

The response to the league's invitation is understood to leave America's hands free for independent action and is not regarded as committing this government to any forcible measures which the committee might decide upon, such as an economic boycott or arms embargo.

At the same time, it indicates the Roosevelt administration will work with the league on terms of close cooperation, although not a member in efforts to stop the fighting in the Far East.

During Secretary Stimson's tenure, state department officials described their conception of cooperation as embracing a full interchange of information.

Brief and simple funeral services were held this afternoon for United States Senator Robert B. Howell, of Omaha, who died in Washington Saturday.

The body, accompanied by Mrs. Howell and a congressional funeral group, arrived at 7:30 a. m. today and was taken to the Howell home, where it remained until the hour of the services.

KILLS WOMAN,
THEN SUICIDES

Mill Worker Shoots Woman Worker And Turns Gun On Himself On Monday.

Perkasie, March 14.—A woman weaver was murdered and her slayer committed suicide while a score of other employees went about their duties, unmindful of the double tragedy, Monday morning at the Ward-Davidson Towel mill.

The slain woman was Elizabeth Wein, 45, who resided in an apartment at 7th and Arch streets, Perkasie. She was shot and instantly killed by Harry Costlow, 53, of Perkasie, who a minute later turned the revolver on himself and fired a bullet into his brain. Both resided in Philadelphia until two years ago.

Costlow, who was a foreman and loom fixer at the mill where the shooting took place, was married, and leaves a wife and seven children, ranging in age from 3 to 25 years.

In reconstructing the shooting, Corporal W. Paul Snyder, of the state police, stationed at Doylestown, said jealousy was the motive for the double tragedy. Snyder learned that Costlow quarreled with Miss Wein because of her attentions to another man and carried the pistol to the mill Monday morning after having planned to kill the woman.

He had visited Miss Wein's apartment on numerous occasions, police say, but during the last week had learned that another man was intimate with her.

The couple were working on the second floor of the mill. Shortly after 8 o'clock Costlow sent Francis Feenstra, 20, of Souderton, to the first floor with a bunch of keys, leaving the couple alone except for Benjamin Snape, 61, another weaver whose hearing is not keen.

As Feenstra was descending the stairs he saw Costlow walk to where his coat was hanging. When he returned to the second floor a few minutes later he noticed smoke curling above one of the looms. He suspected fire and ran to the spot, where he found Costlow sprawled face downward on the floor in a pool of blood. Miss Wein was slumped at the side of a loom. In falling her clothing caught on the machinery.

WOMEN BREAK HUNGER
STRIKE TO QUIT LEBANON

Lebanon, March 14.—Breaking a three-day hunger strike which they staged when offended by the request that they make themselves useful like the other inmates of the county home, where they have been cared for since January 25 last, four Canadian-American women Monday agreed to leave if provided transportation to New York. The quartet claimed their forebears laid out Pennsylvania. They were identified as Mrs. Dora Runchey Steinmetz, 70, and her daughters, Geraldine Runchey, 40; Mrs. Mabel Clara Runchey Corson, 39, and Inez D. Runchey, 38, all of Hamilton, Ontario, where Mrs. Corson places the value of her real estate holdings at $80,000.

ZANGARA NOW
IN DEATH CELL

Slayer Of Mayor Cermak, Of Chicago, To Die In Chair Next Week.

Raiford, Fla., March 14 (AP)—Heavily guarded by a squad of national guard machine gunners, Giuseppe Zangara, the assassin who shot five persons in an attempt to kill President Roosevelt February 15, awaits the electric chair here for the murder of Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago.

Governor Dave Sholtz signed the death warrant Monday after Zangara had been removed secretly from the Dade county jail in Miami, where he was convicted last Friday. The warrant sets the execution for the week of March 20, the actual day and hour to be determined by L. F. Chapman, superintendent of the state prison farm. It was held likely Tuesday, March 21, will be the date.

Interviews Forbidden

Under rigid orders from the governor, interviews were forbidden with the swarthy Italian who shot down Mayor Cermak; Mrs. Joe H. Gill, Miami society matron; Russell Caldwell, Coconut Grove, Florida; William Sinnott, New York policeman, and Miss Margaret Kruijs, Newark, New Jersey.

The latter three were not seriously wounded, but Zangara was given an 80-year sentence two weeks ago for attempting to kill the three and Mr. Roosevelt. He was not tried for the shooting of Mrs. Gill, who now lies in a hospital in a serious condition as a result of a bullet wound in the abdomen.

Lodged in Death Cell

Zangara was brought to the state prison by Sheriff Dan Hardie, of Miami, and within ten minutes was photographed, finger printed and lodged in the death cell. He showed no signs of nervousness or curiosity at the prison surroundings.

"Are you sorry you shot Mayor Cermak?" Sheriff Hardie asked the assassin, as he was being led to the death cell.

"No," replied Zangara. "I'm not sorry. I wasn't shooting at him, but I'm not sorry I hit him."

Garbed in regulation stripes, Zangara spends most of his time lying on his cot in the death cell. He has made no requests and says little to the guards who stand watch over him.

ERICKSON IS
MONTANA SOLON

Governor Resigns Office And Is Appointed Senator 11 Minutes Later.

Helena, Mont., March 14 (AP)—Governor John E. Erickson resigned late Monday to become the successor to the late Thomas J. Walsh in the United States senate. Frank H. Cooney, lieutenant governor, becomes chief executive of Montana.

Erickson, a democrat, resigned late Monday and Cooney was sworn in immediately as chief executive by Chief Justice L. L. Callaway.

Cooney, becoming governor at 5:37 p. m., retired to the governor's private chamber and signed the appointment of his predecessor as senator.

The appointment of the new senator was filled at 5:43 p. m., eleven minutes after the resignation took effect.

Governor Erickson last November was elected to a third successive term as the state's chief executive and began his ninth year January 1.

As a resident of Kalispell the governor entered state politics when he was elected in 1920 to direct the democratic campaign as chairman of the state central committee. He served again in this capacity in 1922. In 1924 he was nominated for governor and in one of the hottest campaigns of recent years was victorious over Governor Joseph M. Dixon, seeking re-election.

Born March 14, 1863, in Stoughton, Wis., Erickson received his early education in the rural schools near his father's farm. He continued his education at Washburn college, from which he was graduated in 1890. The following year he was admitted to the bar of Wisconsin.

WINGS WHIP
DAIRIES, 49-27

Miss McDannel Scores 27 Points In Preliminary Tilt To Thrill Crowd.

Rolling up a 30-9 advantage at half time, the Gettysburg Fleet-Wings soared to one of their easiest wins Monday night by downing the Harrisburg Dairies on the Hotel Gettysburg annex court, 49-27.

Long range goal tossing by Raber Seely coupled with some brilliant work beneath the baskets by Lew Reilly enabled the Wings to enjoy a comfortable lead at all stages of the game.

The Wings completely outclassed their opponents who registered but two field goals in the first half. In the final round the scoring was more free and the visitors hiked their point total to 27 but found the Wings continuing to outscore them.

The large crowd that assembled early in the evening to see the Gettysburg Blue Streaks oppose the Hanover champions were rewarded with a hard fought battle that went to the Blue streaks, 37-22.

Miss Lillian McDannel, Arendtsville girl star who played with the locals, lived up to her reputation by amassing 27 points by some clever goal tossing.

Hanover got off to a fast start and piled up a 7-0 lead before the locals tied. However, the Streaks soon swung into action and once in the front, were never headed.

While the goal tossing of Miss McDannel featured the contest, the spirited play of Garretson, Biglerville star, Butt and Funkhouser was outstanding. Kintzing and Anthony put up good games for the Hanover sextette.

VALIANT DUST

by Percival Christopher Wren Author of "BEAU GESTE"

SYNOPSIS: Despairing of help against the advances of Raisul, cruel son of the powerful Kaid of Mekazen, from any source closer to her, Margaret at last appeals to Herr Schlacht, ostensibly a German agent. Even her husband, Jules Malgini, has failed her; now all she wants is to return to her native England, and forget Africa, and inaccessible citadels such as Mekazen. Herr Schlacht warns her against trying to escape alone.

Chapter 32

MARGARET'S TASK

"Abandon the idea, I implore you, Frau Malgini," Herr Schlacht urged. "There are better deaths than that, and no need for death at all."

"There are worse things than death," replied Margaret, and felt that the remark sounded silly and melodramatic. "I mean, I think I'd sooner die than go on living in this state of fear."

"Raisul?" asked Herr Schlacht. "Yes. And the place. It is getting on my nerves, everything, everybody. I cannot sleep now. Oh, I... Whom can I trust?"

"Mineself," replied Herr Schlacht quickly. "Me. You can trust me, as your own Herr Papa."

"Well—for a start—can you give me a pistol? It would make all the difference, I think. I should be mortally afraid of the thing—but it would drive out a worse fear."

"Er—yes, perhaps. Perhaps, yet. And a harem-woman's cover-all with eye-holes—a complete disguise, so that you can visit me—or run to me for safety. Yes. But if I do this for you, and part with my precious pistol—upon which my life also may depend—will you do likewise something for me?"

"Anything," replied Margaret.

"Good! Now listen. Will you watch where I tell you to watch, and report to me what you see?"

"Yes," replied Margaret.

"It is good. And will you tell me anything you hear, anything you hear about what is going to happen? Gossip, information volunteered by your husband; anything Raisul may tell you; any interesting remarks, statements, speculations made by the Lady El Isa Beth el Ain? Everything; anything. I can sift the information, true from false, myself. Will you do that?"

"Yes," replied Margaret. "Yes—except in case of confidences. I mean—if my husband, for example, said, 'Promise not to tell anyone if I tell you something' and then told me of..."

"But you need not agree," interrupted Herr Schlacht. "You need not give your promise."

"True," agreed Margaret. "I will refuse."

"So! It is good. Now something other. A little thing—but important. I do not ask you to play decoy. Not to be what you call the vamp, isn't it? You are not of such a kind... But I do ask this. And I will give you the pistol when you have promise."

"Now listen. A military mission comes here soon. Very soon. A French officer and escort of European soldiers. I know the officer—and I want you to know him. Your husband shall arrange. I want you to talk to this man. He will be very friendly; and soon he will talk much. Encourage him..."

"Encourage him—to what?" asked Margaret.

"To talk. And then tell me what he says; the sort of things he talks about; any suggestions or proposals he makes to you."

"Suggestions? Proposals? Why should this officer...?"

"Because he is of that sort. He will make love to you."

"Margaret sprang to her feet."

"Good Heavens above us! What on earth do you mean?"

"No, no, Fraulein. Listen. All will be well. It is a good thing for you—goot in every way—that he comes. It will lead to your freedom, your escape from here, your return to England. See, you have no one else to trust. Trust in me absolutely."

"All right. I will trust you—and obey you. But give me the pistol, now, at once—as a proof and a token."

"So. It is here," and Herr Schlacht produced a small automatic pistol and handed it to Margaret.

"Can you use it?" he asked.

"No."

"Later I will unload it—and show you. It fires six times, quick. Or just once only, if you wish. There you are—now trust me and listen."

"When this officer is introduced to you, and you sit on a seat in der garden and make conversation, ask him if ever he has heard of Aureille de Tounens. Learn der name by heart, and do not forget it. Introduce it as naturally as you can. Say that you have recently been hearing about him (which is true) if this officer, his name is Riccoli—Major Napoleon Riccoli—asks why you mention him. Or say you have been reading about Aureille de Tounens—and that you heard that Major Riccoli comes from Bordeaux, which was the home of Aureille de Tounens. Riccoli does not come from Bordeaux, but it does not matter."

"Well—I'd better know something about this Aureille de Tounens, if I am supposed to have been reading or hearing about him, hadn't I?" asked Margaret.

"Yes—but Riccoli will do the talking about him, I fancy. The name will be enough, I think. It will set him going and you will hear wonderful things—and you must tell me what he says. If the name is not as a spark of gunpowder, I am wrong in my thinks."

"Aureille de Tounens. Who was he? He was a private gentleman, a worthy, if obscure citizen of Bordeaux, who in 1876 made himself a king in South America. A proper real king, 1876 model, with whisks, and with a capital, a court, a palace, an army, an all der rest of it. He really was King Aureille I of Arauco, South America, and he had his own royal standard and a national flag of Arauco. He had a royal mint, and struck his own coinage, and he issued his own stamps."

"But Major Riccoli can, I expect, tell you far more about him than I can, and that is what I want you to find out. All you haf to do is to remember the name, mention it to him, and see what happens."

"What is likely to happen?"

asked the bewildered, frightened and unhappy Margaret.

"You may hear that Aureille de Tounens was mad and a megalomaniac, and that was why he failed. You may then hear that another and infinitely greater kingdom is about to be created—and at a spot not far from where we are sitting. And another thing that may happen is that you will receive the offer of a crown—the chance to become queen consort of the new kingdom."

Margaret contrived to laugh.

"Is the man mad?" she asked.

Herr Schlacht patted her hand, and continued.

"I do not promise these great things," he smiled. "I only think perhaps this happen. Do not be disappointed if..."

"Oh, no," replied Margaret. "I shall be getting blasé soon. This will be the second..."

"Raisul, eh?"

"Yes, I shall have to tell this gentleman what I told Raisul—that I already have one husband."

"That would not trouble the good Raisul. Nor the good Riccoli. To these great men obstacles exist but to be removed."

"Is the man mad?" asked Margaret again.

"That is exactly what we want to be certain about," replied Herr Schlacht. "Whether he is really mad—or ambitious to the point of mania. So talk to him—of Aureille de Tounens—and of power and conquest and love—and form your own opinion. And tell me. Will you?"

"Yes. But I won't betray confidences—and cheat and lie... I hate, trickery and..."

"Ja! Ja! Of course, I know. You only make him talk and then tell me if he is going to be a king. Ha! Ha! The Man Who Would Be King!"

"Now let me show you how to use the pistol. First we take out this—charger, holder, magazine-clip, is it?—from the handle, and then the ugly little thing will not go bang. I never did like fire-arms—nasty dangerous things, isn't it?"

In a few minutes Margaret was able without much trepidation to load and unload the automatic, and having unloaded it, to hold it still and steady while she sighted it and pulled the trigger.

"Now unload—and suddenly I will jump up and spring towards you and you shoot me."

"Vair goot! That would have cooked my bacon as you say."

"Also it would have cooked the bacon for Raisul, eh? ... if he came. Yes, I think you pluck his goose if he try tricks."

"Ja—that Raisul! ... you kill him if he attack you."

3 cups sliced potatoes; 3 tablespoons flour; 2-3 teaspoon salt; 1-3 teaspoon pepper; 1-3 teaspoon celery salt; 2 tablespoons butter; 2 cups milk.

Mix potatoes, flour, salt, pepper and celery salt. Pour into a baking dish. Dot with the butter and add the milk. Cover and bake 40 minutes in moderate oven. Remove cover, bake 10 minutes to brown the top.

Celery and Apple Salad

1 cup diced celery; 1 cup diced apples; 1 tablespoon lemon juice; ½ teaspoon salt; 1-3 cup broken nuts; 1-3 cup salad dressing. Chill ingredients. Combine and serve on lettuce.

Prune Gelatin Pudding

1 package lemon flavored gelatin mixture; 1 cup prune juice, boiling; 2-3 cup water, boiling; 2 tablespoons lemon juice; ¼ cup sugar; 1 cup prune pulp; ¼ teaspoon cinnamon. Pour juice and water over gelatin mixture and stir until it has dissolved. Cool. Add rest of ingredients which have been mixed together. Pour into mold and chill until stiff. Unmold and serve plain or with cream.

RANCHERS ADOPT DUCKS TO FIGHT TICK PEST

Sydney, Australia (AP)—In Queensland and in the north of New South Wales ducks have assumed a new importance and are being bred in thousands.

It has been discovered they have a keen appetite for cattle ticks, vermin which cost ranchers millions of dollars annually.

Flocks of trained ducks now mingle with the cattle. Every time a beast lies down the ducks swarm over it and makes short work of the ticks.

NEGRO KILLS TAXI DRIVER

Dispute Over 20c Results In Murder Of Cab Driver In Baltimore, Sunday.

Baltimore, Mar. 14.—Oscar Goldstein, a taxicab driver, was shot to death about 8 o'clock Sunday morning by an unidentified negro, who, witnesses said, protested he had been overcharged 20 cents by the driver.

The murder occurred in the 1800 block Etting street, in the heart of the negro area, in the northwestern district.

Eyewitnesses furnished the police with a detailed account of the occurrence, but residents of the narrow street professed ignorance as to the identity of the negro who did the shooting and to that of the negro woman with him.

Flee In Different Directions

The gunman and the woman, the police were told, ran in different directions as Goldstein, with a bullet in his brain, dropped to the pavement, clutching a crank handle he had grasped in an attempt to defend himself.

Henrietta Gore and Ida Kirby, negroes, who live at 1828 Etting street, told Lieutenant Edgar Steinacker that the taxicab drew up at the curb across the street from their home and a negro man and woman, about 19, stepped out of it.

"They said the driver and the male passenger argued about the fare, the negro alleging he had been overcharged 20 cents."

Strikes Driven, Then Shoots

Finally, the witnesses said, the negro, apparently about 35, struck Goldstein in the face with his fist, and the driver disappeared into his cab to emerge with a crank handle.

Then, they continued, the negro drew a pistol from his pocket and, backing away, shot the driver. The bullet, examination disclosed, entered the hear above the right eye.

About New York

By William Gaines

New York—It was news to me—that the telephone books for some of the city's busiest "nests" of phone booths are replaced with new ones several times a week.

Hordes of impatient number-seekers thumb them with such vigor that they are torn asunder in no time, and so fresh directories have to be rushed in. In some of the Times square places fighting your way to a telephone is little easier than taking Manchuria with a pop-gun would be.

The news, to me, is that the books ever are replaced. It must be that I always get to them between the times some frantic fellow has grabbed out a handful of pages and the arrival of the replacements.

Metropolitan Musings

Speaking of telephone books—as you may have heard, there are different tomes listing the numbers in the several boroughs of New York. It used to be that a subscriber in Manhattan would be supplied with all the borough books. Now the idea is to give him only the directories the telephone company thinks he needs.

They have just tossed a new red book (classifying the trades) on my desk, and a cursory glance through it reveals that five establishments still deal in lightning rods, two are listed under "Bibles" and three under "Bars," that one of the makers of pants to match your coat and vest offers "900,000 different patterns to select from," and that there are 71 stables, while the garages take up three pages.

By the way, I dropped into P. Keenan's livery stable on Second avenue at Sixty-fourth to ask for a saddle horse in a hurry (no—if you must know—I wasn't trying to flee the town; I wanted it for a friend who bet me he can stay on one), but there was none.

One must go to the riding academies up near Central Park for saddle horses, it seems, unless one wishes to ride the delivery-wagon nags and coachers in Mr. Keenan's grim old quarters.

Mr. Keenan's stable has a front office which is just about like most of the littered and dingy front offices in stables I remember from my boyhood back home, and it entertains types of the old stable stove league.

Upstairs you will find some dust-covered victorias and other turnouts for sale—cheap. Or, if you want to, he can hitch up a horse for you to go buggy-riding some fine afternoon, at a modest rental.

Outside, the Second avenue "L" thunders by... and unbroken lines of motors roar in smug forgetfulness that horses once pulled their forebears home from most every venture onto the streets.

Trolley Thrones Doomed

While we're on Second avenue, let's give a thought to the antiquated surface cars, soon to give way to buses under a new franchise.

The bumpy-bump trolleys have single arm-chairs on one side. I saw a stout woman get stuck in one several years ago, but they give a person under 250 pounds a feeling

Woman Burned To Death In Blast

Norristown, March 14.—A woman was fatally burned Sunday in a fire which damaged her home and a man was seriously burned while attempting to rescue her.

Mrs. Agnes Widger, 29, living on Maple street near Mt. Airy, died in Montgomery hospital several hours after she was carried from her apartment on the second floor of the dwelling by Henry Garrison, 35, of Swede street near Oak.

Garrison was walking along the street when children called his attention to smoke pouring from windows of the house, and told him the woman was alone in the place. He ran in and found Mrs. Widger enveloped in flames, trying to battle the fire alone.

Garrison carried her out, while firemen extinguished the blaze. Garrison was taken to Montgomery hospital, where he was treated for serious burns on the face, hands and body.

Police said Mrs. Widger was heating her apartment with the aid of an oil stove, and believe it exploded.

of exclusiveness and exaltation. I love to sit in these foolish little trolley thrones, which must fade before the demands of a crammed and squeezing age.

New York—You might think that the small business woman, trying to earn a modest living with her own shop, would be spared by petty racketeers. But she's not, in this town.

It isn't uncommon for threatening grafters to try to muscle in on her earnings, using the old "protection" device.

I was one of a party in a small restaurant in the East Fifties when some of the women present started talking to the proprietress about "how perfectly splendid" it is for her to have her own little business.

That led to a recital of the woes encountered by a woman in the restaurant business in New York, and one of them is the racket menace.

On several occasions, hard-looking characters have visited her place and introduced themselves as "night watchmen." Their brusque "suggestion" was that she give them a dollar and a half or two dollars a month, for which they would "guard" her place against nocturnal intrusions. They reminded her that otherwise there would be constant danger of vandalism and burglary.

She Snubs Racketeers

Of course, such chisellers have no intention of acting as vigilant watchmen if they get their rake-off. They take it for granted that their victims are wise to the ways of city racketeers; that timid women will shell out a small sum to keep the "watchmen" themselves from returning to do damage.

They must count on a large number of women patrons to make their game worth while, considering the comparatively small tribute they exact from them. Or maybe this is

RUSSIA JAILS FOUR BRITONS

Surprise Raids Are Made Over Week-end; Company's Records Are Seized.

Moscow, March 14 (AP)—Four British subjects representing the firm Metropolitan-Vickers in Russia, and four of the company's Russian employees, including two women, have been arrested following raids on their homes and offices by secret police.

Beginning Saturday night and continuing in the early hours of Sunday, the raiders, numbering more than a score, who carried search and arrest warrants, first visited the home in Perlovka, a suburb of Allan Monkhous, Metropolitan-Vickers director here. They seized a number of papers and documents for which they gave receipts, and then took Monkhous, his assistant, W. H. Thornton; their Russian chauffeurs, a woman typist and a woman secretary away under arrest.

Second Apartment Raided
Later another raiding party visited the Moscow apartment of John Cushing, another of Monkhous's assistants, and seized papers there. They also arrested Cushing and W. L. MacDonald, one of the company's installation engineers, who had been in Moscow only two days after several months in the field.

Metropolitan-Vickers is one of the largest English firms doing business in Russia. It is engaged in selling and installing electrical machinery and turbines and in furnishing technical advice to the soviet government.

Company's Papers Seized

The firm located here ten years ago and it was understood its contract still has six months to run. Its organization in soviet Russia includes approximately fifteen installation engineers working in the field, in addition to administrative offices in Moscow and Leningrad.

The Metropolitan-Vickers business offices, located in the general headquarters of the Russian organization, "Electroimport," in Moscow, were raided at the same time and the company's records and other papers seized.

Particular woman, by the way, lives above her restaurant with a pistol under her pillow. She has told such annoyances to go right straight to East River and jump in before she loses her temper. And so far not of them has come back a second time.

Most of those at our table recalled hearing similar stories from other women with business establishments.

Charlotte Walker, the actress, said she was in a fashionable coiffure shop when an oily stranger swaggered in and asked for the woman who ran the place. The proprietress herself fibbed to him:

"She's not in now, and I don't know when she will be back."

Then she volunteered an explanation to Miss Walker.

She has been asked so many times for two dollars monthly "protection" money that she prefers to avoid talking to any suspicious looking character who enters her place.

Waving The Baton

Cab Calloway, who gets that hot rhythm out of his Harlem night club orchestra, has a $40,000 house in exclusive Riverdale. There's $25,000 worth of furniture in it, if it's the figures that interest you. . . .

Ozzie Nelson, who makes the band a good advertisement for one of the biggest hotels, says he's the only New Yorker leading an orchestra in New York city. Well, he must have overlooked somebody, but it does seem that most of the baton wavers are from everywhere else.

Will Osborne, the slender, quiet mannered, crooning conductor, is a poker enthusiast. He ought to be good—he has a poker face. . . . Paul Whiteman isn't the only orchestra leader who once chauffeured a taxi cab. So did Abe Lyman. . . . When B. A. Rolfe was a youngster he hawked peanuts with the John H. Sparks circus and played the cornet in the tent band.

COW TAIL HAIR IN MATTRESSES

New Washable Mattress Provides A New Use For Cow Tail Hair.

Pennsylvania farmers may find their cows' tails are useful for other purposes than flicking flies off the cow's back in the summertime, according to Walter Shaw, chief of the section of bedding and upholstery, department of labor and industry.

A new type of washable mattress has been thoroughly tested in the chemical laboratory of the department. Composed of long, domestic white cattle hair, firmly interlaced this mattress provides a filling which can be thoroughly cleansed by washing like other similar articles. Due to a zipper arrangement both the filling and the mattress cover can be washed and dried.

The Hospital Association of Pennsylvania has requested the section to prepare an exhibit for a convention to be held in the Bellevue Stratford hotel in Philadelphia March 21, 22, 23, of some of the materials found in so called "new" mattresses and upholstered furniture.

This exhibit includes filling composed of clothing not even shredded, with buttons still attached, carpet shoddy; dirt dust and Chinnamen's queues, labelled "new cotton."

363 Drivers Lose Operating Permits

Failure to report accidents as required by law resulted in the operating privilege of 363 motor vehicle drivers being suspended in 1932 the deviation of safety, department of revenue, reports. They were 12 per cent of the total suspensions.

The law requires operators to report all accidents involving property damage of $50 or more or personal injury. Accidents reports are prevented by law from being made

hear the words of the book, and the eyes of the blind shall see out of obscurity, and out of darkness.

The meek also shall increase their joy in the Lord, and the Accident: On Saturday morning,

Mr. Samuel Hoonagle, of Highland township, met with a painful accident, which might have proved very serious. Whilst driving on the road with a load of corn, he made a misstep and found himself under the saddle-horse. The horse began to rear and tramped him in the face
and bruised his side. Mr. Hoonagle was dragged about twenty feet before he succeeded in stopping the team. It is hoped that prompt attention and care will soon restore him.

Other engagements prevented us
from hearing Father Boll on Monday night, but we understand that he had the fullest house of the service, which indicates that the interest in the lectures is growing. Father Boll gave his trip over the Mediterranean from Naples to Alexandria, and thence to Cairo, with his impressions of people, manners and customs. Next week he will finish Cairo and pass on to pyramids,
cataracts of the Nile and Egypt
generally.

Arendtsville Items: Mr. David Minter, residing a mile from this place, raised 362½ bushels of wheat last year, from 29 acres. It was known as the longberry wheat.

Miss Rose Swope has bought Mr.
Samuel Young's house and lot in

will move to Altoona in April.

Mr. David Miller, father of Mr.
Henry F. Miller, of this place, who died in Chambersburg a short time ago, was born and reared on a farm near Round Top, and was the last of 11 children, his aged being 78
years.

In a short time the schools will close in this part of the country and R. A. Lytle will open his school here on the 9th of April.

Mr. Henry Roth will return to his farm in Butler township, on Thursday; he has been living for the last year in Fayetteville, Franklin county. Mr. Samuel Roth, his son, will go to Cellersburg, Clarion
Co., to take charge of a new mill
on the 1st of April.

S. Murrell Trustees.

A number of young men from
this county have gone west and others will follow in a short time.

Horses and cattle are bringing good prices at the sales through this county.

Accident.—On Monday week
when S. E. Wampler, Esq., and a friend were driving across the railroad track the horse took fright.
In the effort to check him one of the lines broke, and the horse ran along Railroad street, upsetting the buggy, and throwing the occupants
out. Fortunately they escaped with bruises and no serious injuries
were received.

Arrest.—On Tuesday evening
Cokenour, sentenced to six months
in the county jail at Hagerstown
and escaping from the deputy sheriff, turned up in Gettysburg by stage from Monterey. He went to Thorn's barber shop, where he had his hair cut short and mustache removed. Meanwhile High Constable Culp had got information of Cokenour's escape and recognizing him at once, arrested him. Mr. Culp communicated with the Sheriff of

TODAY'S TALK
By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

PLEASING OTHERS

IT IS all very well, and indeed a very noble thing, to live for others. But there are too many people in the world trying to please others instead of themselves. We should try to please ourselves first of all, for then we are presenting to the world something sincere and genuine.

I read the other day in one of R. B. Cunningham-Graham's unique introductions, that a man should write, for instance, to please himself—
even though he may not have but one or two others who might be pleased by what he writes. What does it matter, anyhow? If we can't satisfy our relentless demand, then how can we hope to reap reward from others who have no understanding of our depth of feeling and desires?

An artist should not work for judges or critics, or prize boards—but for himself—for his own eternal approval. What a sacrifice for a real artist to sell the stirrings of his soul for gold or applause!

Meryon, Millet, Gissing, Hudson and a host of others, sold the product of their brains and hands and souls for bread—but not for gold or applause. Trafficking bargainers do that—after they are no more of the earth.

Our most relentless critic and judge, and friend, should always be ourselves. Not until we pass the jury of our best judgment and honest belief, should we be willing to let the rest of the world in upon our achievements.

The truly great of the earth had little suspicion, during their life-time, that they were thus to enter the arena of history. History is hard to please. Like the Chief Justice of the highest court of appeal, she renders her final judgment, independent of all influence or bribe.

We must strive to make others happy, but not be any too anxious to "please" them! For fear of losing their respect, for one reason.

whose strength or weakness is almost all-important, in spite of all the labor of the fathers to devise a system of government free from dependence on any single man.

Almost immediately Mr. Roosevelt proved how ineffective the constitutional curb of power is in practice.

At a moment when congress was not even in session he availed himself of an old statute to close every bank in the country, suspend for the time being gold redemption of the currency, and authorize the use of scrip in place of currency.

And scarcely anyone uttered a single word of criticism of his act.
Whatever the constitution may say,
the people had learned to look to a single leadership, and they did so unflinchingly again.

An Eloquent Story

The full story of the new president's personal part in this event
has not been disclosed by the surface developments, eloquent as they are.

It was Mr. Roosevelt himself who found the statute, who looked into
the financial problems involved,
who worked his proclamation into its final draft, and even directed in detail how and when it should be made public.

His approach to the special session of congress testifies further to the depth of his determination to court responsibility, and assume leadership, whether he actually attains it, and with what wisdom he exercises it—these appear today the central consideration of American destiny.

Lad Forbids Sale
Of Native Birds

Pet shops in Pennsylvania which have been offering native birds for sale under the guise of foreign species will be subject to heavy fines
for such offense unless the practice is stopped. Under the game laws
no one may sell or possess any protected birds which belongs to the same family as those in a wild state in this commonwealth. The fine is $20.00 for each bird.

A game protector recently noticed
an advertisement offering blue linnets for sale. He visited the pet shop and identified the birds as indigo buntings. Identification was confirmed by experts in the academy of natural sciences.

The cardinal or red bird as it is commonly called, often is sold in the guise of a foreign resident.

Don't Get Up Nights

Make this 25c Test

You need a bladder physio to drive out impurities and excessive acids that cause
irritation, burning and frequent desire.
Get a 25c test box of BUKETS, the bladder physio, from any drug store. After four days if not relieved of getting up nights go back and get your money. BUKETS, containing larch leaves, juniper
oil, etc., acts on the bladder similar to castor oil on the bowels. If you are bothered with backache, or leg pains arising from bladder disorders you are bound to feel better after this cleansing and you get your get your regular sleep. People's Drug Store, Gettysburg, and H. A. Stone-sifer, Littlestown, sell BUKETS in a best seller.

Seeking Leadership

There were hopes, of course, that the new congress would be better than the old, but those who spoke of it at all ended by tying in their hopes, also, with the man in the white house. The question was:

Will the incoming legislators show
a united front behind an administration program for real rehabilitation?

This trust to a single leader in time of trouble has been characteristic of every national crisis. It is the president who man make or mar,
will be at the home of Mrs. Amos Wolfe.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Staley and children, Olive, Colleen, Marcella
and Junior, were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob

Continues Move
To Aid Children

Continuing its aggressive campaign to secure early and proper eye
care for visually handicapped school children of Pennsylvania, the state council for the blind has been collecting specific information from public school systems which will give a complete picture of the number of children with visual impairments so severe that some type of special education must be provided if they are to have an equal chance with children of normal

eyesight.

During the past month the council has completed studies of 60,000
school children. In one school system alone where 13,000 pupils are enrolled, the study disclosed 345

children with eyes so crippled that they can not either pursue their school work satisfactorily or with safety to their remaining vision.

The council is now preparing to continue this study in several additional public school systems, involving approximately 25,000 children. Results of this study, when complete, will be presented to the school division of the state department of health for use in securing proper educational facilities for children of this handicapped group.

The GETTYSBURG NATIONAL BANK

Urges Advertising As Expression Of Confidence In U. S.

"The public has to conquer fear before it can conquer the conditions which are responsible for the prolongation of the depression and its attendant frozen business. When fear ceases to stupefy and strangle the business leaders, the rank and file, business will boom again, banks will cease to fail, moratoriums will not have to be declared and we, as a people, will once more enjoy the security and happiness which are our inalienable rights."

H. H. Hoyt, treasurer of Carter's Little Liver Pills company with headquarters in New York city, made this statement yesterday when asked by a representative of this paper if it was true his company would continue to advertise without cutting the appropriation as a majority of the advertisers of the country have.

Maintains Advertising "Advertising appropriations have been cut through fear and fear is responsible for the continuation of poor business conditions. Every bank failure, the moratorium, the necessity for scrip, are evidence of the widespread hysteria which is the result of fear," he continued.

"In my opinion, there is a vital need to maintain advertising schedules. Every time the advertising of a publication drops off, the publication appears as a scrippier edition. The psychological effect of your daily paper, or favorite magazine, decreasing in size is fear producing. It acts as a boomerang. Short sighted caution on the part of men and women who are regarded as leaders in the professions, the industrial and business and economic fields, only increases the buying public's wariness and is responsible for the stagnation in circulation of money.

"Advertising is absolutely necessary to the success of modern business. It sells the produce to the buying public. It is a public endorsement that big business has faith in the stability and integrity of the United States and those who govern as well as in its own product.

Supports Advertising "This is not theory with us. Carter's Little Liver Pills have consistently maintained advertising schedules throughout the depression and we are continuing to advertise and will. Moratoriums, the result of public panics, cannot frighten us. Newspaper readers have been our customers from the time the formula for the pills was originated and we mean to continue in business. How can we if we cease advertising? We are not one of the largest businesses in this country but we are a sound, well-established concern determined to continue to follow sound business policies. We hope in our small way to aid in restoring confidence and to help the new administration in meeting the crisis which has paralyzed a panicky America."

Joe Chamberlain, new White Sox rookie, may not be the best shortstop in the business, but he's probably the biggest. He stands 6-3 and weighs 185—Gargantuan proportions for a short-fielder.

STOREKEEPER DUE TO FACE COURT IN WOMAN'S DEATH

Danville, Va., March 14—Richard Anthony Eames, local storekeeper, went on trial in the corporation court here Monday on the charge of killing Mrs. Louise Ferrell, two months ago, in his home, which adjoins his small grocery.

Eames went to a local hospital last Sunday in a state of nervous agitation, according to his doctor, but he was discharged on Thursday and Commonwealth's Attorney John

W. Carter said that he was ready for trial.

There has been no indication what the defense will be, for at the time of his arrest the accused declined to make any statement and he waived the preliminary hearing. At the bail hearing, however, there was testimony that Mrs. Ferrell had carried a dinner to Eames and that suddenly shots were heard and neighbors entering the house found Mrs. Ferrell dead and Eames with a revolver in his hand.

TOLL-FREE BRIDGES URGED TO SPAN POTOMAC RIVER

Winchester, Va., March 14 (AP)—Proposals to erect toll-free highway bridges across the Potomac river at Harpers Ferry and Shepherdstown, West Virginia, had the backing today of a number of commercial and motoring organizations in northern Virginia and nearby sections of West Virginia and Maryland.

Assemblyman U. S. Martin, of Jefferson county, West Virginia, has said that toll bridges operating across the river made tremendous profits last year.

The university of Florida is offering a course in practical navigation during the current semester.

CAPITAL SHUNS SOCIAL AFFAIRS

Mrs. Roosevelt Says Only Traditional Functions Will Be Held At This Time.

Washington, March 14.—In view of the stress of the times, official Washington will forego all social activities until next fall, with the exception of one or two traditional white house parties, Mrs. Roosevelt told newspaperwomen Monday in her second conference held in the room once known as Mrs. Monroe's sitting room, but now a general family sitting room of the new executive household.

Explaining the decision reached at her initial meeting with the wives of the members of the new cabinet, Mrs. Roosevelt said:

"We decided that because of the conditions at the present time, none of us cared to have any more formal social affairs than were absolutely necessary. We all felt that this was not a time when we should be thinking about it and certainly not a time when much money should be spent on purely social show.

Omit All Formalities

"We all realize that people have to see each other and to get to know each other and we will get together when we can, but we decided that as far as formal entertaining is concerned, we will do as little as possible this spring at least.

"Therefore, the women are not going to have formal days at home until next autumn. Many of them have their children in schools away from Washington and will be coming and going, so we decided that we would have no regular meetings for the present, but I told them that whenever they wished to see me they could find me at home at tea time—5 o'clock—every day."

FIRST LADY KNITS IN CONGRESS

The house of representatives, called in extra session, caught its breath in surprise upon discovering the wife of the President, hatless and informally dressed, knitting away on a sweater in the gallery. Beside her sat Mrs. Mary Baker, daughter of Louis Howe, her husband's secretary, also with her knitting. Rules require that the gallery audiences shall not engage in activity other than watching. But nobody cared and apparently Mrs. Roosevelt is welcome to bring her knitting whenever she wants to. (Associated Press Photo)

Bingham, Straus and Daniels Are Appointed Ambassadors

Washington, March 14.—Nominations to three important diplomatic posts were made by President Roosevelt Monday when he sent to the senate the names of Robert W. Bingham, Louisville, Ky., to be ambassador to Great Britain; Jesse Isador Straus, of New York, to be ambassador to France; and Josephus Daniels, of Raleigh, N. C., to be ambassador to Mexico.

Confirmation did not follow immediately, as the nominations pursued the regular course and went to the committee on foreign relations. All the nominations had been forecast.

The designation of Mr. Bingham was so definitely understood that for some time he had been quietly preparing to sail for London, but he was precluded from making any admission of his selection. Both he and Mr. Daniels are newspaper owners and Mr. Straus is a merchant, so that in the president's first batch of diplomatic appointments journalism won the rubber.

Mr. Bingham, who is publisher of the Louisville Courier-Journal and Louisville Times, was born in North Carolina sixty-one years ago. His father, Robert Bingham, was head of the Bingham school in Asheville from which Mr. Bingham was graduated in 1888. He also attended the University of North Carolina and the University of Virginia.

In politics he served as county attorney of Jefferson county, Kentucky, and mayor of Louisville. He became chancellor of the Jefferson circuit court in 1911. He has been married three times. By his first marriage he had two sons and a daughter. His second marriage was to Mrs. Mary Lily Flagler, of the Standard oil family. His present wife, whom he married in 1924, was Mrs. James Byron Hilliard, of Scotland.

Straus Head of Big Store

Mr. Straus was an active worker for President Roosevelt's nomination and election and did much organization work to that end. He comes of a family long identified with mercantile business in New York and has been president of R. H. Macy & Co. since 1919. His father and mother lost their lives in the Titanic disaster when that vessel sank in 1915 on her maiden voyage from England. He was born in 1872 and was graduated from Harvard in 1893 and is a member of the board of overseers of Harvard college. Mr. Straus married Irma S. Nathan, of New York, in 1895 and they have a married daughter and two sons.

The appointment of Mr. Daniels marks a reversal of the relations which once existed between him and President Roosevelt, for he is now to serve under the man who was his subordinate. As secretary of the navy in the Wilson cabinet President Roosevelt was his assistant, and new Mr. Daniels becomes subject to his former assistant's orders. Mr. Daniels called on the president Monday and remarked on the change.

'Drunken House' of Foggia Doomed By Plans for Beautifying Italian City

Foggia, Italy (AP).—The "drunken house of Foggia," one of the world's strangest buildings, is to disappear in its 82d year as part of a city beautification program.

Eleven intoxicated youths erected the house in a single night. They mixed the cement for its main walls with wine.

It was built in 1850 to spite the proud governor of the region, Don Francesco Saverio Pigliolla, who was fond of gazing out over his extensive wheat fields from the windows of his mansion. One morning he rose to find the tilted, rose-tinted walls of the drunken house obstructing the view.

The story goes that Don Francesco was piqued because his neighbor, Tommaso Antonio Bucci, keeper of a wine house, refused to sell a parcel of land between the mansion and the wheat-fields.

Bucci too was irked and since his cellars were filled with barrels of rich red wine, he felt in a position to squander the money for the spite house.

Don Francesco warned the citizens of Foggia against helping to construct the building. But Giovanni Raho, a non-resident, volunteered with his 11 sons to put up the house between sunset and sunrise.

"The value of Pennsylvania's program in dealing with the undernourishment problem has been clearly demonstrated. However, to sustain the gains already made, it is essential that there be no let-down in the work," said Dr. T. B. Appel, secretary of health, today. "Money expended for this purpose has accomplished a splendid result. Present expenditures, large as they are, could not be compared to the economic burden which would follow if the constructive and preventive health measures were not being emphasized now."

LOOKING AROUND--

By Don Bee

Basketball is fast running its course locally. Only the Fleet-Wings remain in action and but two home games remain on the schedule. Thursday night the famous Renaissance return here for a game and next Monday Buck La's Hawaiians will be the opponents in the final game of the year.

The Renaissance quintet returns to Gettysburg with a most impressive record. The colored team has not lost a game since December 10 when Yonkers nosed them out, 23-22. Since that time they have won more than seventy straight games against the strongest opposition in the country. Their victories include four wins over the Brooklyn Visitations; three decisions over the Philadelphia Spas; a win over Yonkers and two out of three from the New York Celtics.

In their first clash with the Wings the colored boys walked away with a 45-33 decision after a hard battle. The Wings are noncommittal as to their chances of avenging that defeat, but they are not entirely without hope of victory.

Miss Lillian McDannel, Arendtsville court star, made her debut with the Gettysburg Blue Streaks auspiciously Monday night and, as

Feel Tired, Lazy and Wornout?

That tired, lazy feeling you've been troubled with recently is nature's way of telling you that your vital organs are sick and need immediate attention. To continue to disregard this warning is sure to result in something more serious and much more difficult to overcome.

Here's Good News

If you want to regain your old-time pep and ambition—if you long for the days when you could put in a hard day's work and still feel like going out for the evening—if you seek something that will stimulate your appetite and give you a stomach equal to the occasion—then, get a bottle of Natex at once. It will bring a sparkle to your eyes, put new color in your cheeks, and make you feel stronger and better than you have in a long time.

Natex is the prescription of a college professor. Contains from three to five times as much real medicine as ordinary tonics. It costs a little more but it is well worth it. DEPRESSION WON'T STOP FARM BOYS' EDUCATION

Atlanta (AP).—The farmer, although he has been hard hit by the depression, is still sending his sons to college.

Farm students lead all others in numbers at Georgia Tech.

A census of parents of students here reveals that out of 2,298 parents, 45 are farmers. Merchants come second with 350, among the 21 different occupations listed.

In five successive basketball games this season Notre Dame played to a total of 31,000 spectators—a better than 6,000-per game average.

COULD NOT GET A NIGHT'S REST

Tired Every Morning—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her to Sleep

"I could not get a good night's sleep for over twelve months. Every morning I was very tired. Since I took the Vegetable Compound, I sleep much better, and get through my work more easily. I am sixty-one years old and I look after a sixteen room rooming house beside doing the cooking for myself and husband."—Mrs. A. HALL-WELL, 517 So. Main St., Fall River, Mass.

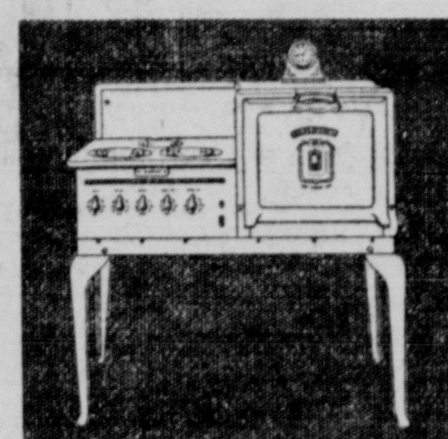

If you are restless and nervous, take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It quiets the nerves and brings back sound, refreshing sleep.
